

Sporty's SP-400 hand-held NAV/COM: A complete radio stack in the palm of your hand

"It won't happen to me" is an attitude you simply can't afford. If your instrument panel goes dark, you need to know that you can get your airplane on the ground and call for help. Now, for roughly the price of a tank of gas, you can enjoy the peace of mind of a versatile hand-held NAV/COM with full ILS capability.

Introducing the all-new SP-400 from Sporty's. It's like having a complete standby radio stack in your flight bag, and it could save your life in an emergency. It's also perfect for everyday use: Listen to ATIS, get clearances before engine start, or just monitor local traffic.

New features include:

- IEGIDisplay (localizer plus glideslope) — the only radio with this feature;
- Over-sized resolution screen — twice as large as most other radios;
- Backlit keypad for easy operation in the cockpit;
- One touch emergency frequency button;
- Visually channel recall;
- NOAA radio;
- Sidetone to let yourself talk when plugged into a headset.

Sporty's SP-400 [product # SP-400A] is priced at just $399.

Get the big picture: Get SkyVision Xtreme Vision

Take "See & Avoid" to a whole new level with a cutting-edge traffic and weather display from SkyVision Xtreme! As many pilots across the country will tell you: Once you fly with this system, you'll wonder how you did without it for so long. You will be shocked to see all the traffic that you never knew was there. You will be comforted knowing exactly where they are and where they are going.

Highly accurate traffic is only half the benefit of this system since you also get numerous weather products without subscription plus products, such as NOTAMs, not available with other services.

ADS-B will change the world of general aviation and regardless of the negative press you may have heard about the FAA's latest mandated technology, it is affordable and it is something that you can use now to stay safe. The Xtreme Vision display system puts subscription-free traffic and weather at your fingertips. Imagine having traffic intuitively displayed in a 3D environment and all the weather products you need without the burden of a subscription. Having this priceless information at your fingertips provides the comfort of knowing that you can avoid potentially deadly situations.

With the one-time equipment cost of an ADS-B transceiver like the NavWorx ADS600B, two antennas, the Xtreme Vision display and installation as a portable or as a permanent-mount, you'll be flying with extreme situational awareness!

Visit our website: www.skyvisionxtreme.com to download your free trial of the Xtreme Vision software and see more exciting ADS-B products from SkyVision Xtreme, LLC!

Gathering information pre-flight is something we all have to do (FAR 91.103), but ADS-B is giving pilots accurate and up-to-date information about traffic and weather in flight. Why wouldn't you want to fly with all available information?

Get the big picture. Get Xtreme Vision.
